

Organisations are living systems

How do we recognise our potential in the forest?

Get to know the forest as a living system
like a society or organisation

Organisations and forest as self-managing living systems

«In a world where organisations are self-managing living systems, we do not need to force change from the outside. Living systems have an inherent ability to sense changes in their environment and adapt to them from within. In a forest, there is no "upper tree" that plans and dictates changes when the rain falls. The whole ecosystem responds creatively, in the moment. Evolutionary organisations deal with change in a very similar way.» (translated; Laloux, 2017: 128)

Laloux Frederic (2017): Reinventing Organizations visuell – ein illustrierter Leitfaden sinnstiftender Formen der Zusammenarbeit. Verlag Franz Vahlen. S. 171. (Reinventing Organizations visual – an illustrated guide to meaningful forms of cooperation)